First woman swims across the Atlantic

A 56-year-old is the first woman to swim across the Atlantic Ocean. Jennifer Figge left the Cape Verde Islands, near Africa's west coast, on January 12th and arrived in Trinidad Island on February 5th to write her name in the record books. Her original plan was to swim in a straight line to the Bahamas, but the bad weather forced her to change direction and swim an extra 1,600 kilometres to Trinidad. She spent a month in the water, swimming for up to eight hours everyday. Her day started at 7.00 am with a big breakfast to maintain her energy. She burnt 8,000 calories a day during her adventure.

Figge first decided to swim the Atlantic when she was a teenager. She was on a plane to the USA and decided if the plane crashed, she could swim back to the coast. She trained for her trans-Atlantic marathon in a swimming pool surrounded by snow. Figge says she was never afraid during her swim, she never saw any sharks, but there were lots of whales, dolphins and turtles. She thought a lot about her family and her pet dog when she was in the water and told the newspaper journalists: "My dog doesn't know where I am. It's time for me to go back home to Hank."
